U.S. Diplomacy Center Simulations:

Simulations - National Museum of American Diplomacy (downloadable options)

In person options; at the U.S. Diplomacy Center, the staff run 2-hour diplomacy simulations for student groups who visit (up to 25-30 students, from either 9:30AM-12PM or 1:30PM-4PM, once it is scheduled)– students all take on stakeholder roles and step into the role of a diplomat to wrestle w/real global issues to resolve a crisis (e.g. border security, migration, counterfeit goods, non-proliferation, countering violent extremism, etc.). The units were created with subject-matter experts in the Department. So, they are real issues that these diplomats have faced, but include hypothetical countries to take out the politics and let the students focus on the issue at hand. What is great is that they usually have a subject-matter expert brief the group for 15-20 min., and they can speak more about careers at the Department and working overseas. It's a great program that develops students' global competency skills. To set this up, you would contact DiplomacyCenter@state.gov

U.S. Department of State Speaker's Program:

<https://speakerrequest.state.gov/> - you can request any topic & the visit can be in person or via Skype, etc.

Are you interested in hosting a speaker from the U.S. Department of State? The Department of State's Office of Public Liaison conducts outreach to domestic audiences by connecting the Department of State to the American public. The office engages students, educators, civil society organizations, diaspora groups, and more to learn about U.S. foreign policy issues and priorities through briefings, conferences, and other virtual events. Please reach out to Irina Karmanova at Karmanoval@state.gov to organize a Zoom or WebEx session for your community - this is a great opportunity to speak directly with a State Department policy expert and learn more about a specific global topic. Previous sessions have focused on topics such as US-China relations; Human Trafficking; Human Rights; Global Women's Issues; Policy in Venezuela; Climate Change; and cultural norms and travel safety and security.

Foreign Policy Classroom:

It is not associated with the U.S. Diplomacy Center, but we have the same goal in reaching out to students within and outside the Department. The Office of Public Engagement and Intergovernmental Affairs brings in State Department Officials to discuss policy priorities with a group and here is the link to their webpage.
